

High-performing teams across Kaiser Permanente have shown that an open, engaged and accountable work environment is essential to building safety into day-to-day work. Here are three things every team can do to make KP the best and safest place to work.

1. Contribute to a respectful workplace in which everyone feels comfortable raising a concern, problem or idea.

2. Report unsafe conditions to a manager or safety leader immediately.

3. Ask for help or call a stop to the work when you perceive an imminent danger or need help to safely complete a task.
